

American Board of Recorded Evidence

Application for membership

Benefits of Membership:

- Mentoring and collaboration with the ABRE membership
- Access to industry news and career opportunities
- Participation in exclusive ABRE discussions and educational resources
- The prestige and stature of the ABRE name and logo on your CV and website

The scientific practices and methods conducted by members of the ABRE are accepted by, and peer reviewed within, the scientific community. ABRE member results can be validated, and faithfully recreated, by other industry experts. All ABRE members are required to demonstrate and maintain the highest standards and abide by a strict code of ethics:

Code of Ethics:

- Objectively examine and analyze all relevant case evidence using established, validated principles
- Only render opinions that are true and accurate with a demonstratively reasonable basis
- Be prepared to produce a written report to support the faithful replication of expert results
- Never withhold any type of findings that could misrepresent or distort case facts or findings
- Never misrepresent credentials, training, experience, education or membership status
- Never publicly disparage forensic colleagues except in an official capacity on an ethics review board
- Safeguard confidential information and exercise due care to prevent its improper disclosure
- Perform professional duties in accordance with the law and the highest standards of integrity

Terms of Membership:

Only current ABRE members can denote themselves as such and use the ABRE name or logo on their CV, Resume, or website. ABRE acceptance and continued membership is free and open to all professionals with careers working with recorded evidence, and that are in full compliance with the ABRE's Code of Ethics. The current ABRE committee determines ABRE membership and committee position approval and removal. Current requirements can be found at ABREboard.com and are subject to change as required.
